

Short Biography

With a BSc in Mathematics from Imperial College London and an MSc in Computational Fluid Dynamics from Cranfield University, Derrick is currently pursuing a PhD under the supervision of Dr Tamás Józsa. His research focuses on mathematical and computational modelling for stroke-related biomedical applications, alongside machine learning approaches for biomedical image analysis and simulation-driven healthcare research.